

3-04/030.40 - Highly Emotional Cases

While any case may be considered an emotional situation for some, particular types of cases usually will create situations which require special handling. Examples of situations that may require special handling are, drive-by shootings involving innocent victims, rape cases, child custody cases, divorce proceedings and victim impact statements.
